dates from Cairo, Egypt, to the 17th of July.

A commission had been sent out to stop the pilgrims now on their journey from Mecca to Egypt, by land, at some marches the other side of Snez. Should there be any appearance of cholera among them, they will be detained at a safe distance from Suez until the disease leaves their cump. The great cholera which devastated Egypt in 1832-3 broke out in July, which would correspond with the period of the return of the pilgrims in those years.

The course of the disease at Jeddah is spoken of as most heart-rending. Peoplo were stricken down in the streets, where, as stringers, they lay and perish by hundreds, for the want of assistance. Mr. Calvert, the British consul there, is reported to have exerted himself heroically during the fatal visitation. By the better ported to have exerted himself heroically during the fatal visitation. By the latest accounts the disease had ceased at Jedekh, but it was very severe at Suakin. Ancona, on the coast of Italy, about sixty miles from Rome, a few hundred from Bremen, and sometimes the summer residence of the Pepe, is as yet the furthest point the choirm has attacked in its norther states.

point the choicra has attracked in its north-western course. The number of deaths there on the 4th instant reached thirty-four. Ancona is one of the principal sea-port towns in Italy. The cholera has now a foothold in Europe, and in consequence of the character of the people and thick-ness of the population, it may spread over the continent.

The Pall Mall (London) Gazette says:

A rimor has been current of a violent disease spoken of as the "black plague" having broken out at Bhartum. The description was, that large tlark spots appeared on the arms, legs and brad, and that the persuns attacked were carried of in a few hours. The latest accounts from that locality do not mention the subject, and we may therefore hope that the rumor is unfounded.

From Constantinopie we learn that a panic has consequently seized the more wealthy, who have the from the infected city to establish themselves on the shore of the Bosphorus and the liste of the Princes. In some parts of Stamboul this panic has obtained such dimensions that, recurring to a correspondent of the Indeed a week. The origin of the plague, it is said, is infected foreign eattle brought to Islington eattle-market; but sound cattle coming there have caught the disease and spread it to such an extent that nearly 2,000 are said to have suffered within a month. There is no known remedy or antidate; but miless something be done, it is possible the disease may spread over the whole country, and England may suffer an actual dearth of animal food, and the usual consequences of a lower diet on a people accustomed to a better. A deficiency of animal food will tell upon the price of bread, and all other kinds of food, and the poor will always be the greatest sufferers.

MO. A New York paper in discussing the approach of the cholera, says: "Let us take the housewife's maxim as she locks the cream away from the cuts—as ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.' What we want is systematic, authoritative action. We want a com-mission of wise and active men, who can go to those nests of disease and death with power to act. Let New York be paritied from palace to hovel—give disease

Exactly the same assertions will apply to Chicago. It is time that action should be taken to meet the plague, which in all human probability will reach our shores in 1886. Prompt, exhaustive actions of the plague.

We can inform the Journal that we ver at any time held that the President ould suspend the writ of habeas corpo We did hold, however, that when Congress anthorized the calling of troops to put down the rebellion, they invested him with the rights of a beiligerent, under which he could do what was necessary to the safety of his army, and what was a ing fool No. 2, who is of the order of fool eesslty of war, and not inconsistent with the true theory of the Government officer is responsible to the civil power for his exercise of such powers, It is inable is intinite, and if Blondin had kept adverto great abuse, and needs the most vigllant restraints. The President has no power to suspend the writ of hubcas corpus; but he can take prisoners and hold them as a belligerent right, or kill armed enemies, and it is by due process of law as much as the arrest of a criminal by a civil officer, or the killing of the criminal, if it be necessary, is due process of law. As soon as we ncede this, however, what chaim is set up? Why, that the military is supreme all over the country. Military commissions to try citizens, fine, imprison and hang them, are conceded powers, the military being the Judges of their own powers in such cases, and not responsible to civil courts. Well, it did not seem possible that men could really set up such absurd preensions in a free country. If such are to be the consequences, we beg leave to take back all concessions of belligerent rights. A military order in the lines of an army and in the presence of an enemy, we have held logitimate; but binding only while and chalk, which is meant for a bow the necessity lasts-it is legitimate only to the audience. The crowd yells and whilst the danger exists. In conceding this, we don't admit that a military order can set aside State or national laws and Constitutions; and that an order to that effect has any validity.

It does not seem to us at all diflicult to grant belligerent rights, and stop without running that grant luto a surrender of the whole theory of the Government. General Jackson, when that they would not have gone a step. he imprisoned Judge Hull, did not suppose he was not responsible to the law for and tinsel if there is no danger of hts kill-1. The editor of the Journal is still ribbling about the Monroe doctrine, exelling Maximifian, &c. He is an Inveterate nlnny. Ilis party have more sense than to undertake a war with Napoleon on such a point now, unless the war is forced by some national indignity, aside from the mere assertion of the Monroe loctrine. Abraham Lincoln dldu't intend to get into a tight on that point. He kicked that plank out of his party platform, and therein showed more sense than the party demagognes that met at Baltie, which is not saying much, for they had precious little. Hls party will gas and bluster about the Monroe doctrine, but confine themselves to gassing and blowing. They have only one object, and that is to hold political power. If they can't keep up a large standing army without the pretext of war with France, they will make war, for military power is a necessity to them. But it is easy to make other pretexts, without the hazard of a war with Mexleo. The stealings in New York city are dendid. The common method for a man without capital to open a large bankinghouse was with a crowbar. Now they get a cierkship, and instead of doing bankers singly, they put them through by the gross. Very lately two Philadelphia detectives brought home a rogue who had lone some banks to the tune of one or two nundred thousand. A banker's clerk, named Jenkins, puts his employers through to the amount of a quarter of a ful evidence on such terms. million or more. He is a liberal fellowgives a "pretty waiter girl" from three to five thousand a year, and hands over the greenbacks in chunks liberally. Then omes Ketchum, the great banker, and he loes catch 'em. Thousands won't do-he strikes between two and three million, and disappears so they can't catch him. His frauds tumble over banks right and left. Realiy, business is brisk in New York sure enough.

The Journal thinks we are inconistent, because we got off what we called the Union train. Now, we generally treat parties with courtesy, until they claim a name as a merit, whilst they are not entitled to it. We have sometimes been even more courteous. We have called them loyal people, and even what they wanted he world to think them-the saints-the infallible people. We really hold them be disunionists and Jacobins, and history will assign them such appeliations. We left no Union party. We left that train to avoid the end it was driving to, and at which the Journal and its present party have arrived. The editor has freently expressed great abhorrence of what he is now, and it is not improbable that he will do so again:

Horrible Murder.

The New Albany Ledger of yesterday s a most horrible tragedy was commit at the village of Harrisonville, Ind., the 14th inst. It seems that a young unined Gather had become enamored young lady named Mary J. Yarnall, that some misunderstanding had en piace between them after a short artship. On the morning of the day med Gather took his Henry rifle and nt out into the main road leading lato village, up which Miss Yarnall was lking toward him. When they had orly met each other Gather fired upon young lady, the ball passing through heart, killing her instantly.

Some time since a clothing store in Madon, Ind., was entered and robbed of a ge amount of clathing, and at the time due could be obtained as to who were thickes. Information was lodged with police of our city, and they kept a arp lookout for the parties. Yesterday icers Hipwill, Sweeney and Booker arted John McCreighton, Charles Welch d Charles Phillips alias Price, in whose session was found a large quantity of e stolen property. The parties will be ken to Indiana for trial.

About 7 o'clock yesterday morn g a gentleman from New Albany (we d not learn his name), met with a seris accident on the street railroad, near corner of Main and Jackson streets jumping from the car while under y. The fall rendered him entirely seless for some minutes, and it was right had dislocated his hip joint. We irn that no blame attaches to the driver onductor of the car, as the injured in did not inform either of them of s wish to leave the car. It is a matter regret that persons must be taught by ch painful lessons that it is dangerous get on or off of the street cars while in Wall street is somewhat disturbed to-day by the rumor that a strong party has been formed to induce congress to authorize the izzue of more currency to Katiomal barks. It is anticipated that the pressure will be sufficient to insure a further issue of currency, which will bring on more inflation and a letter feeling throughout earl, with a fair-demand or stock. The general market a little off from the extreme point, but rallied again when it became mown that the bank statement would be more fa-torable.

(Jovernments not affected by the European news.) Miscellaneous shares were strong and generally offered very sparingly.
The gold market remains very firm, with prospects of a resumption of species shipment and an active demand for duties. In connection with the fact that the Treasury is not selling it has a tendency to advance the premium. The decline in London quotations in partially the bases of the dayance, Money is easier and offered quite freely. It is reported there will be a shipment of $500,000 on Wednesday.
